New Candidate for Municipal Honors || Irish Are Supreme in British Politics

IRISH HOLD WHIP HAND. HISTORY OF DISPUTE

Story of How England Has Dealt With the Lords Question

London, Nov. 19.—There was great political activity in all parties today. The Irish leaders claimed the balance of power in the House of Commons and the control of the constitutional situation. A decided cannot apparently be substantiated their claims.

Now or Never.

T. P. O'Connor, one of the Irish leaders, in discussing the situation today, said that it was now or never for the Irish Nationalists to stand together.

"I deplore the attitude of the O'Driscoll party when it is now at its strongest," said he. "Never in the history of English and Irish politics has Ireland had an opportunity like the present. The Irish have sufficient strength to control the situation. I am going into Parliament tomorrow with the single aim of doing everything in my power to gain freedom for Ireland, at all. I will secure the best terms possible. If the session ends abruptly it will have to be another Parliament which will listen to my plea."

John Redmond had similar views and his contention was that the struggle for Irish home rule has now attained the point where a short but active fight is necessary.

How it started.
The trouble started over a year ago, when the Lords rejected Lloyd George's budget which had passed through the House of Commons. This resulted in the dissolution of Parliament, and precipitated a general election which was held early this year. The voters endorsed the budget and returned the Liberal party to power, but with such a small majority that the Government had to depend on the Irish members to carry through its programme. This placed the Irish party in a position to dictate, and when the new Parliament resumed its duties last spring, the Irish leaders insisted on the passage of a set of

ASKS FOR DIVORCE

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—The Canada Gazette contains notice that Arthur A. James of Winnipeg, railway news agent, will apply to parliament for divorce from his wife, Travers Ella Harvey, of Edmonton.

START WORK ON GROAT BRIDGE

A gang of nine or ten men have started excavating for the Groat Ravine Bridge, and it is expected that that branch of the work will be completed in two or three weeks, when the concrete work will be commenced. The two wooden bridges further west are also under construction, and will be completed some time in January. The Groat Ravine Bridge is to be completed by April 1st, the Dominion Bridge Company, to rush the steel construction as soon as the concrete works are completed.

GUIDE POSTS FOR AVIATORS

All France May Be Covered With Numbers So Air Men May Read and Learn.

Paris, France, Nov. 19.—Experiments in reading from a great height numbers raised in vivid colors upon the ground were made this week from the Eiffel tower by representatives of the war minister and the National Aerial League of France. The result was entirely satisfactory, and in consequence the government and the league probably will co-operate in establishing a complete system of designation by number of localities throughout France. The system will be such that all aviator may learn latitude, longitude, and his distance from important cities, rivers, mountains, and the sea at almost any moment. France will be divided into square sections, at each corner of which signal numbers will be placed. In the daytime their gigantic outlines will be revealed by the contrast of colors and at night by electric incandescences.

REFUSE PRICE OF THE LAND AFTER GRADING WAS FINISHED

Mourinville Farmers Demand $50, C.N.R. Offers $20; Meanwhile Construction Finished—Charge of Trespass.

Application was made by Col. Edwards on behalf of the plaintiff, in the Supreme court, this morning to have judgment rendered in the cases against the C.N.R. for trespassing, brought by Messrs. Lavell, Monnier, Thelan, Recept, of Mourinville. Judgment was delivered by Judge Stuart for the plaintiffs on Tuesday last for damages for trespassing on their land north of Montevideo. The company commenced construction across their lands in June 1909. After beginning operations on the land an agreement for $25 per acre was obtained for the right of way.

PHONOGRAPH RUN 170 HOURS IN MUSIC WAR

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 19.—For four years Philadelphia has had "a war of phonographs" and the end is not in sight. Harry Le Dana and his next door neighbor, Fletcher Dunne are owners of the rival phonographs. At five o'clock this afternoon the Le Dana phonograph had been grinding out "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly" for 170 hours at a stretch. Le Dana and his wife took turns winding the machine and resetting the record. The other was the same way with the exception that the tune was "America." The row started when Mrs. Dunne, with her piano, endeavored to drown the noise, making privacies of the Le Dana phonograph. She was a good candidate for a physician's care. The husband had to purchase a phonograph. Now the two machines grind day and night. The neighbors declare that unless the families settle their difference they will apply to the police.

contract for the year's supply of lubricating oil, agents of the big oil companies are foreclosing in the city to compete for the order. Except for the big oil companies in Southern Alberta the city of Edmonton is the largest user of lubricating oil in the province. During the past year the city was used approximately 200 barrels, valued at something like $1000. It is expected that the amount will be larger during the coming year. The last contract was let in November, 1909.

Among the bidders who will compete for the order this year is C. C. Snowden, of Calgary, who represents the independent oil companies and who intends, if he gets the contract, to build an oil warehouse in Edmonton next spring.

JUST 554 WORDS

Mr. Henri Bourassa Makes Some Talk in 'Le Devoir'—Replies to Laurier.

Montreal, Nov. 19.—Mr. Henri Bourassa publishes in 'Le Devoir' a reply to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's letter in 'La Presse', heading the article "Laurier, Berthelme Dandaneau and Co." and beginning with the statement that the fraternal embrace of these gentlemen marks the dreadful fall of the man who for so long dominated the public life of this country.

"I asked Laurier one day," proceeds Mr. Bourassa, "why he saw fit to fraternize with such people, and he replied: 'My dear Sir, political leadership is not a matter of the army, they are obliged at all times to make use of spies purchased from the enemy.' This conversation took place in 1905 before the famous meeting at Golden Lake, and the body of the article, in fact, the essence of the article, is devoted to the fact that Laurier has thrown his arms around the neck of the present time this beats all. It is, it being generally taken as granted that Alderman McKinley will re-conquer this seat. Other names that have been mentioned for aldermanic seats are Mr. Thomas McNamara, Mr. J. J. Collison, and Mr. Alderman Moser."

"A DISHONEST MAN" DECLARES JUDGE

Scores Witness In Case in District Court—Contradicted Own Evidence.

Philias Mausmeine was awarded $50 and costs in his case for replevin against J. W. Johnson in the district court yesterday. The case arose out of seizure made in the spring of this year of a steamer motor belonging to J. W. Johnson. The seizure was made by J. J. Paul, the Fairchild company, on a charge of mortgage held by that company. The horse was immediately sold at auction to J. W. Johnson who purchased it for $125 from the company. The horse was immediately sold at auction to J. W. Johnson who purchased it for $125 from the company.

After hearing all the evidence Judge Taylor decided that Mausmeine was not wronged, but that Johnson was the real cause of the injury. Nevertheless the horse was Mausmeine's and there was nothing to do but return it. The damages $50 be considered far from sufficient but in view of Johnson not being directly responsible he could not award greater damages. With J. Paul, who made the seizure, and is responsible for the injury, the judge did not mince his words. "Mr. Paul is a dishonest man," he wrote the judge. "He contradicts his own evidence." The responsibility of the Fairchild company, who had guaranteed Johnson's title, will be tried at another date. John Connick appeared for the plaintiff, Mr. Howe for the defendant. J. T. J. Collison was for the third party, the Fairchild company.

Candidates Still Shy of Announcing Intentions With Nominations Only Sixteen Days Away.

Mr. Clarence C. Gowin, of McCleary, is the first new aspirant for aldermanic honors. Mr. Gowin has for some time been talking of offering himself for election, and it is understood that he is favorable to the municipal league platform, but it is not known yet whether the league will have him in its ranks. With Mr. Gowin in the field, the number of vacancies to be filled has been reduced to three, it being generally taken as granted that Alderman McKinley will reconquer this seat. Other names that have been mentioned for aldermanic seats are Mr. Thomas McNamara, Mr. J. J. Collison, and Mr. Alderman Moser.

TO ASSENT TO C.N.W. BILL NEXT TUESDAY

C.M. O'Brien Secures Assent to Fedorenko Resolution—All Quiet Today

The bill to incorporate the Canadian Northern Western Railway Company introduced in the legislature this week by J. K. Cornwall, the member for Peace River received his second reading yesterday afternoon, and after referred to the Railway committee, which met directly after the house adjourned. It is expected that the bill will be given its third reading and will be passed on Tuesday next. The bill also provides that the bill will be given immediate assent by the Lieutenant Governor on account of the fact that the Canadian Northern which is to build the road is in a hurry to proceed with construction. The line is to be built inside of two years, so it is imperative that a start be made in the early spring. According to the bill, the company may issue bonds to the extent of $5,000,000, and these bonds are already being offered on the London market by Wm. McKenzie, president of the C. N. R. The Canadian Northern Western Railway Company capitalized at $6,000,000 and the head office is to be in Edmonton. A C. McKenzie, of the construction company, was present at the discussion by the committee.

The postal news is tranquil today, owing to the fact that many of our members and politicians have left to spend the week-end at their homes, but a week of increasing developments may not unreasonably be looked forward to on the return of the legislators to the capital on Monday. The Alberta University bill, providing for amendments to the charter will be given its second reading in the legislature on Monday afternoon. Mr. Medals, Trophies, made to order, Jackson Bros.

UNIONS WILL HOLD MEETING

Meeting Tonight to Decide If Sympathetic Strike Will be Called or Not.

A meeting of the local trades union will be held this evening to decide whether they would support the plasterers by a sympathetic strike or whether they will intimate to the plasterers that it is time he strike should be called off.

The plasterers do not find their lot a bed of roses. In spite of strike-pay finances are running low. No help has been obtained from the International Union and local assistance has a limit. Besides this some of the merchants are refusing credit to the strikers and it has been intimated that in case of a sympathetic strike such credit will be refused altogether. The plasterers as yet refuse to say anything in the matter but will know to-night what is to be done.

CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE IS MERGED INTO THE A.A.H.A.

Northern District of the Provincial Hockey Association Will Consist of Varsity, Strathcona, Y.M.C.A., Bankers and Deacons's Eskimos—Draft Schedule to Commence on January 3rd, is Drawn Up—Disposal of the City League Cup.

Senior amateur hockey in the Twin Cities was the reason of the representative gathering at the Y. M. C. A. last evening. They assembled to start the City Hockey League away on another season and ended up by sitting in at the obsequies of the organization.

Development is the keynote of everything western, so the hockey delegates decided last evening to abandon the City League idea and branch out as the northern district of the A. A. H. A.

This tidy little district will be composed of University of Alberta, Strathcona, Y. M. C. A., Bankers and the amalgamated Deacons's Eskimos. The winners will hold the Brackman-Ker trophy and will go into the semifinals of the A. A. H. A.

President J. W. Ward occupied the chair last evening with Mr. Chown acting as secretary while Rev. Robt. Pearson and R. J. Deacon acted as assistants. Mr. Ward congratulated the delegates on the splendid way in which the 1909-10 season had passed off. The schedule was played out to a finish, not a single protest was lodged, and all teams by their good sportsmanship, showed a wish to further the interests of amateur hockey in the north. Good referees were also a great factor in the league's success. Congratulations were extended to the Deacons, who went through the schedule without a defeat being charged up against them.

Owing to Treasurer O'Hara's removal from the city, no report was forthcoming of the meeting and it was learned that while the balance on hand may be small, there are no outstanding liabilities. The delegates were organized as they should have been, a failing that the admission of two Strathcona teams should do away with this season.

The Provincial League Vice-President Deacon, of the A. A. H. A., addressed the meeting and went minutely into the idea of forming the Strathcona and Edmonton teams into a district of the provincial association, the district winners to proceed into the semi-finals for the Rutherford and Herald Cups. The provincial chamions will also receive medals, the gift of the Laird Safe Co. of Calgary.

The fees for clubs wishing to join the A. A. H. A. are $5 entrance and $10 annually, payable in advance. Changes are to be made in the constitution, the most important being the residence rule. Formerly a player had to be a resident by October 1st and this will likely be amended to read November 15th.

Mr. Deacon also announced that before a man could get a player's certificate, he must be able to show an A. A. U. amateur card.

A general discussion then ensued and it was ascertained that if the district idea were adopted, all thought of retaining the Edmonton City League must be abandoned.

Mr. Barley, seconded by Mr. A. H. A. U. (as named—J. Barley), moved that the City League be dissolved and the City Hockey League be organized.

The City League was bought by the teams that originally made up the organization. As the senior teams in Edmonton have thrown in their lot with Strathcona, the present organization is not eligible, according to the City League constitution and bylaws to compete for the cup.

This question was thoroughly thrashed out by the delegates last evening and Mr. Young moved, seconded by Mr. Barley, that the City League Cup be placed in the disposal of any team who would agree to play under the present rules and regulations of the league.

The draft schedule commencing on January 3rd, was decided to have the City League constitution and bylaws to compete for the cup.

On motion of Mr. Kent, seconded by Mr. Young, it was decided to have the schedule commence on January 3rd, in Edmonton, and in Strathcona on the following evening. The Strathcona rink, which is under the management of Mr. Humeston, will be available on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and the Edmonton rink, which is under the management of Mr. Humeston, will be available on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The draft schedule for the first half of the season was drawn up, and will be submitted to the A. A. H. A. executive in Red Deer on December 2nd.

In the City Hockey League, the home team, "Deacons" is used for the Deacons's Eskimos combination; "U" is Thistle Rink and "S" Strathcona.

PATH TO PRINCETON TOO HOT
Yale Student on Way to Game Became Foot Weary and Lost Bet as Result

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 18.—While Clark, the Yale sophomore who started to walk to Princeton because he had a dream that if he rode into Tiger Valley would lose, didn't walk here. His dream didn't come true, either, because Yale didn't lose. He got as far as Pelham Manor and found that his feet were bleeding and blistered and that if he wanted to see the game he would have to hop aboard a passenger train. He says a game despite his tramp. At the game he met his five classmates with whom he had a bet. They had bet that he would walk to Princeton, and today he treated them to an elaborate collation.

"WHO WILL CHUCK TODAY, CONNIE?"

"Jaun" Coombs Never Uses the Word "Pitch"—Chuck is An Old Maine Word.

(By Billy Evans)

Fans over the country, who do not know Jack Coombs, are wondering where he is. He is in the city, where he defeated the Cubs in a half dozen days. Take it from me no athlete is better than the man who has won success than Jack Coombs. Properly has not turned his head in the least, and he is today the same unassuming quiet chump who was when he broke into the ranks of the American League direct from that dear old college at Colby Me.

Coombs is a lover of nature. He would much prefer the solitude of the woods of Maine than the plaudits of 30,000 fans in Philadelphia or Chicago. He would feel much more elated over some lunging feat than the beating up of a baseball record in the majors. Coombs likes baseball but not nearly so much as he likes fishing. His love for the diamond sport is more a momentary affection.

During his rather brief career in the American League Coombs has performed enough remarkable feats to satisfy a nation's veteran. He has to his credit a twenty-four inning victory over Boston which stands as the best feat of pitching endurance ever recorded in the major leagues.

When Coombs was a kid in the old town of Maine, the corner lot athletes always referred to pitching as "chucking." Although Coombs has a college degree and is regarded as one of the baseball high birds, he still looks on the word chuck with favor and always gives it the preference over pitch or twirl.

Just now Mr. "Jaun" Coombs, as Manager Mack delights calling him, is the real headline in baseball. Of late years it has been customary to say that Coombs is going to be an exception to the rule and at the close of the season of 1911 I look for him to have performed a few feats that will have set the fans gasping.

Geo. West, formerly of Calgary, has come to Edmonton in connection with the T. J. Young Co. Mr. West was one of the best bowlers in Calgary and has already cast in his lot with the Y. M. C. A. Bowling League.

EDGAR DEY IS WITH MAGNATES

Is the Only Hockey Professional in East Who Favors the Salary Reduction.

(Special to Capital.)
Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 19.—"It is the salvation of hockey" was the opinion of Edgar Dey, former Ottawa forward and a member of the World's Champions of 1909, of the new salary limit, the question of the moment in the Eastern Canadian hockey world. When Dey says as to the reduction in the salaries is unique in the probability that he is about the only paid hockey star who sides with the Nattered Hockey Association magnates.

BANKERS HOCKEY CLUB

The Bankers' Hockey Club, who will play in the Provincial League this winter, will have the purpose of electing officers, on Monday evening in the Canada Permanent office.

DEACONS AND ESKIMOS JOIN

City Hockey Champions Amalgamate with the Rugby Artists—Will Have Strong Team.

A very strong amateur hockey organization was formed last evening, when the Deacons and Eskimos amalgamated. The combined team will play in the A. A. H. A. under a name which is yet to be decided upon.

If Deacon White, Edmonton's leading sporting figure, decides to retain his interest in hockey, the title "Deacons' Eskimos" has been suggested.

With all of last year's city champions, and some new blood to select from, the amalgamation should prove a winner.

The players already signed are: Bill Bamford, Gordon Bamford, Dick O'Donohue, Bishop, McCann, McElroy of last year's Tigers, Chink Rea, Albin, Jack Lines, Fred Kennedy, Hart, Scrapper, McElroy, Albin, and probably Art McGowan and a number of others.

Ans Young will have the management of the new club and will be assisted by a committee from the Deacons and Edmonton rugby club.

At the meeting of the city league last night it was decided that four teams were too many to enter from Edmonton so that was the reason for the amalgamation.

CENTRAL ALTA. HAS BUSH FEVER

Leduc, Red Deer and Wetaskiwin Will Have Professional Baseball Next Season.

(Special to Capital.)
Red Deer, Nov. 19.—Bush league ball is being talked up in Leduc, Red Deer and Wetaskiwin and a six club circuit is being advocated for next season. Manager Watt of the Leduc team is enthusiastic over the project and he says it will surely go. It is proposed to place a twenty-four inning victory over Boston which stands as the best feat of pitching endurance ever recorded in the major leagues.

When Coombs was a kid in the old town of Maine, the corner lot athletes always referred to pitching as "chucking." Although Coombs has a college degree and is regarded as one of the baseball high birds, he still looks on the word chuck with favor and always gives it the preference over pitch or twirl.

CURLING MEETING

A general meeting of the Twin City Curlers has been called for this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the City Hall, when the matter of the Royal Canadian bowls, which is to be held this winter in Edmonton, will be discussed.

PUGILIST JEERS AT FOOTBALL

The Old Whereabouts of the Brutality of Football is Being Revived.

Along about this time every fall some bungalow-browed prize ring must break into print with a tirade against football. It has happened already for 1910, as it has happened about every year since reporters began to think that any utterance of a prize fighter was worthy of repetition or perpetration.

Always the "game little fighter, nobly arrayed," accords some minor football game and takes a close interest in the "proceedings." After the game, while he is "waiting for a car," he is "approached" by a reporter for the Blood Tub of Liberty and the Barite Area of Freedom, who inquires "what he thinks of the game."

"Nothing doing," always responds the "game little fighter," the "hero" of half a hundred (indistinguishably rehearsed) fights. "Not for mine," says he, in that he "ought to be Enlish of the pater parmy." "I like the game—from the bleachers" comes next, and then we have it. They can call boxing brutal, but I'd sooner be pounded on the knob for twenty-five rounds by the Boozetown Butcher than to risk my life in a football game for five minutes."

Then he pulls that caviar-scented—fighter has only one man to watch is the prize ring," while he has "twenty-one in a football game."

Then he kicks in with the distasteful he has for the "rah, rah," boys, and the "morning paper" has material for a scorching about boxing "Terror of the Roped Arena Quills before strategy of College Sport."

All that needs any change in this sorry year by year is the name of the low-down, as he always says the same thing, and it appears to be the limit of his power of criticism. The story books up every fall as regularly as the football season rolls around.

If the prize fighters had brains some of them would declare themselves in as a genius and take the opposite stand—any kick in the head, but genius inside the ropes is about as rare as orchids in a pear orchard. They go on year after year getting their little note of protest against football, thinking that they are knocking, when in fact their knock is a defeat.

HARVARD AND YALE TODAY

New Haven is This Year the Location of the Greatest Annual Struggle in Football.

The big game of the American football schedule takes place today at New Haven when the Harvard crimson meets the Yale blue.

A Yale victory such as the Sons of Eli scored over Princeton last week would lead to a mixed question as to which team may properly claim the championship honors.

At the present stage of the season Harvard easily leads the eastern college players. Amports may be accorded second place. Princeton third, despite their late defeat. The tactical games of Saturday between Pennsylvania and Michigan and Cornell and Chicago offered little or no basis for comparison between the east and west.

The standing not including today's games is:

College	Wons	Loss	Tied	Pts.
Harvard	8	0	0	155
Yale	6	0	0	87
Princeton	7	1	0	100
Pennsylvania	8	1	0	122
West Point	5	1	0	79
Cornell	1	5	0	159
Brown	6	2	1	99
Dartmouth	5	2	0	114
Brown	5	2	0	134

The next half dozen teams follow in this order:

Colgate, Syracuse, Bowdoin, Amherst, Cornell, and Bates.

SPARKLETS.

The Shamrocks of Montreal will play in the game, and will appear the fastest team available. Barney, Doherty of Winnipeg, will manage the team, while Wether Small will play rover.

The Boston Nationals will no longer be called the Doves. John T. Drury yesterday said his interest to John Harris.

AFTER ONE NIGHT IN JAIL.

(New York Sun)

Two hundred men cheered Dr. Maude Glasgow last night in Madison Square, when she shouted at them from the top of a ladder "Col. Roosevelt when he was Police Commissioner of this city gave orders that men as well as women should be arrested in houses of ill repute. He said that if any preference was to be shown he would rather the women should go free and the men be punished."

"What kind of a Legislature is it," she went on, "that subjects one-half of its citizens to a degradation from which they can never recover? You know that I am referring to the iniquitous law in reference to the amputation of women brought into the night court, a measure which even if effectual as a protection to public health, while its existence upon our statute books is an insult to American womanhood."

"Bless the speaker!" yelled a man advancing rapidly but unsteadily toward the ladder. He was dragged away by a policeman.

The crowd listened attentively while Dr. Glasgow told them that one-fourth of the women in the city were earning their living and that in many cases the so-called living was a mere pittance.

"Can you blame these girls, who are half starved and who haven't one penny to spend on the pleasures of life, if they go wrong?" she demanded. "Are you going to so humiliate and degrade a girl brought into court for a first offence that the opportunity for a decent life is lost to her forever? Don't you know that the system followed in night court under this infamous Page law brands the poor creature? Do you men who have daughters as well as sons want to see these poor girls tortured while the men who are responsible for their fall go free?"

"No!" shouted several voices.

"This double standard of morality must be wiped out," went on the speaker. "I believe that if we had the initiative and referendum men would wipe it out as far as the laws are concerned. It is intolerable and it is something that the women of this country won't endure much longer."

"Too long we have been like ostriches, with our heads in the sand. When we ask for the vote we are jeered at because of our unfortunate sisters. We are going to ignore them no longer. If you men who are responsible for their downfall. It shall be our portion to lift them up. The first thing we must do is to get justice, and we are going to get it."

Loud cries of "That's good!" "She's right!" were heard as she speaker descended the ladder.

Dr. Anne Daniels of the Woman's Infirmary, who was chairman of the meeting then introduced Miss Mary Donnelly, a militant suffragette.

"I am here to-night very reluctantly," Miss Donnelly said. "I thought I my duty to tell you a few facts from my own personal experience. Three years ago I was married in the Queen's county jail. I was discharged and my name was taken off the civil service list because I sought to protect the girls who were brought in there from the outrages perpetrated upon them by the prison officials."

"I assure you solemnly that reformation was impossible for any girl after she had spent one night in the Queen's county jail. It was a jail at all. It was a dive. Not only did officers of the prison degrade the women prisoners, who were absolutely in their power, but they put the poor creatures at the disposal of the male prisoners and the men of the town. One girl told me that she had been a bad girl when she was brought there, but that she had never known there was so much to be learned in the world as she had seen there. And yet it is only the women who are punished under our laws. The real criminals go scot free."

Miss Margaret Johnston, a young English woman engaged in philanthropic work; Dr. June Barry of the Women's Prison Association, and Miss Olive Pearce also made speeches.

A REMARKABLE THING

One of the most remarkable things reported in regard to Liberia, is that that African republic, which owes its origin to the efforts of the Nationalist Society of America, an organization formed in 1846 for the purpose of colonizing in Africa the free people of color in the United States, has many slaves and slave-men, though there are but few white men in the country. The slave-owners are negroes from this continent. They are said to regard their African military war as the slaveholders in the Southern States did "before the war." Not that slave-holding is general in Liberia. It is in the interior of the country a form of the slave trade still flourishes; it has not yet been entirely abolished in large sections of central and equatorial Africa, and where civilized government is weakest it flourishes most. The government of Liberia has been exceedingly weak in recent years particularly in maintaining order on its land frontier and in keeping peace among the native tribes.

SIR WILFRED'S LOVE STORY.

"When Laurier was a young lawyer in Arthabaska," says Mr. O. Hammond writing in September Canada Monthly (formerly Canada West) "where by the way may still be seen his former office, bodily bearing his shingle, although he has not handled a brief for many years, his lungs were at one time thought to be seriously affected, and in this connection a pretty story is told of the romance of the premier's life. While attending law school in Montreal, Laurier became deeply attached to a young lady in the house in which he boarded, who had some years before come up from a farm near Arthabaska. The attachment grew to love and promise of marriage. Unfortunately at this stage Laurier's health gave way, and the Montreal doctors thought he could not live long. Under these circumstances the engagement was broken and Laurier went to Arthabaska in wretched health, and as most people thought, with but a short time to live. Soon after his arrival he consulted a local doctor, who told him he was not seriously ill and that with care he might live for a long time."

"Will you give me a certificate to that effect?" asked young Laurier eagerly. "Certainly," the doctor replied. "The certificate was given to Laurier who headed for Montreal to show it to his former lady love. In the meantime the lady had made other friendships which might have proved lasting, but the return of Wilfred with the assurance of probable good health and life, brought the lovers together again. That woman is now Lady Laurier."

DEFINING A SKELETON

The superintendent was in the habit of dropping into the different classrooms and demanding a recital of lessons from the pupils. One day he arrived with his usual physiognomy as the ready for examination. But the little girl to whom the first question was put so bewildered the superintendent and bewilder her loss her patience that there were no more questions of a similar nature asked.

"Tell me," said the superintendent, "what a skeleton is?"

"The little girl thought for a short time. "A skeleton?" she repeated. "A skeleton? Why, a skeleton is all sides off."—New York Sun.

THE GREAT SEAL.

(T. P.'s Weekly.)

When a fresh Great Seal is made, either at the accession of a new Sovereign to the Throne, or during the reign, it is brought into use and the old discarded with quiet and unceremonious ceremony. A meeting of the Privy Council is called and attended by the King in person. The two Seals, the new and the old, are laid on the table. Then the King, in the presence of his councillors, places his hand on the new Seal of England and acknowledges that any document to which an impression of it is attached is his act and deed, and which he commits to the keeping of the Lord Chancellor. The old Seal next undergoes a process known as "demaking." At one time it was the practice to cut it into four quarters and deposit the pieces in the Tower, but for many years it has been discarded simply by a Sovereign making a few punctures over its two sides with a pointed hammer. The marks are regarded as sufficiently indicating that the Seal can never again be used as a State instrument.

The discarded Great Seal is disposed of as the Sovereign may direct. As a matter of custom it becomes the property of the Lord Chancellor, and a more unique official perquisite there is not in the United Kingdom. When William IV. died, and the Throne in 1830, and a new Great Seal was accordingly provided, there was an interesting contention between Lord Lyndhurst and Lord Brougham for the possession of the discarded Great Seal of George IV. At the death of George Lyndhurst was the Lord Chancellor of a Tory Administration but before the Great Seal of William was completed a change of Government took place; the Great Reform Ministry of Earl Grey was in office, and Brougham was Lord Chancellor. Lyndhurst claimed the old Grey Seal as his on the ground that it was in his charge on the death of the Sovereign to whom it belonged. Brougham pointed out that, as provided by law, the old Great Seal remained in use until the new one was ready, and as he was the actual keeper of the old Seal at the time it was discarded, his right and title to it were unquestionable. William settled the dispute to the mutual satisfaction of the statesmen. He allotted to each one of the sides of the old Great Seal and tossed up a coin to decide the choice—which should have the representation of the Sovereign on the Throne and which the Sovereign on horseback.

SANITARY CURRENCY

(Chicago Tribune)

The complaint of most people is not that the currency, which leaves them about as fast as it comes to them—gone they know no whither—no, or may be, unsanitary, but that they do not have enough of it. Even the most fastidious would prefer the dingiest, dirtiest, microbe-infected $20 bill to a clean, crisp, crackling $5 bill. Lure, no matter how alluring it may be, retains its unattractiveness so long as it is not a clean, crisp, crackling $5 bill. But if there can be no increase in the quantity of everybody's supply of currency, an improvement in quality would be the next best thing. Also it can be managed with less difficulty. There are too many haggard fellows, some of them with the look of a beggar, who are in circulation. While we may deride them from our minds the stories that dirty bills are dangerous carriers of disease, they are not pleasant to paw over by persons with delicate sensibilities and clean hands.

The life of a bank note should be a short one. The moment that it shows signs of having been spotted by contact with the world, it should be hurried back to the treasury department. If it can be washed and given back its pristine purity, well and good. If not, it should be cremated.

The brief life of a note, the greater the expense to the note issuer—the government and the national banks. But as far as the government is concerned, it could recoup itself easily by acting on Secretary MacVeagh's recommendation that the currency be reduced in size. That would save paper and ink. It would inconvenience nobody after all the larger notes had been called in. Until then it might bother a little those who have to handle big stacks of bills. The ordinary American citizen will say: "I would not mind the trouble if I could have the bills."

BISHOP'S PURSE AND $2,500

NET NEGRO FINDER $5 NOTE

Mgr. Fouchet's Sailing for France Might Have Been Delayed Except for Honesty of a Porter

New York.—The timely discovery to-day by Benjamin Augustus Jackson, a negro porter, of a fat wallet on the French line pier, was all that prevented Mgr. Fouchet, bishop of Orleans, France, from sailing home penniless.

The bishop left today on Laorraine, after attending the recent Eucharistic congress at Montreal. He discovered the loss of his pocketbook, containing about $2,500 in French and American money just as the ship was casting loose, and great hubbub followed.

Jackman, meanwhile, had found the wallet. A quick restoration followed, and the porter drew as a reward a $5 note.

EDMONTON'S DREAM OF EMPIRE

It has been the dream of Edmonton since the days of long ago that this city was to sit at the double gateway of the trade, the junction point at the crossing of the rivers, the place where the traffic from the Pacific coast and beyond with the traffic from the south and east met.

The development of the country to the west is already assured. No man who has studied the map and who has a perception of the possibilities of the great lone land to the north can fail to realize what it means to Edmonton to have a railway which will bring to the city the gates of the west of this vast though undeveloped country. Alberta is young; she is growing. Prosperity reigns and this, the northwestern corner of human habitation on the Central plateau of the North American continent is today the theatre of the greatest colonization movement that the world has ever known.

But there is an equation which must be recognized; a balance which rules all human enterprise. An unseen pendulum which swings as far one way as it does the other.

While Alberta is attracting from the ends of the earth the choicest of settlers from her agricultural lands, it must not be forgotten that all development is reciprocal; that the development of the fisheries, the forests and the mines must go hand in hand with the development of the country's pastoral resources if the farmer is to be furnished with the market which is requisite to round out the country's prosperity and provide the means of life which cannot come from the fat acres are to be produced in our own hinterland rather than brought at great cost from distant parts of the Dominion or imported from a far and foreign country.

While a veil of romance, a tinge of mystery, screens the enormous reaches of the north, none but a pessimist could believe that it is a barren or desolate land. Time was, and not so long since, when the country which one hundred thousand farmers have so lately turned to a land of plenty, now known as the Canadian West, was shrouded in the same mystery as is the northern land today. Men rose in the councils of the nation to declare the country unfit for human habitation, and like Sherman with his Mexicans in Texas, believed it in the interests of Canada that the nation should go to war with the aborigines and make them take it back. But these men passed out. They were not unopposed, neither were they fools. But they lacked the broad optimism which builds nations and their places fell to men of unbridled vision, with a grander faith in the possibilities of the resources on which this dominion has been built, who recognize the faculty of the Caucasian race to turn to account the raw wealth of the earth no matter in what form nor where found.

The development of the west has been a moving picture of the upbuilding of the Canadian nation. All that has yet been done is but by way of prologue. There is a greater empire beyond. It should not be said of Edmonton and the province of Alberta that the film was broken just as the actors were entering the new storehouse of wealth which the open book of nature guarantees must be unlocked to round out the drama of achievement which constitutes the history of the Canadian west.

And so it is to be hoped, if Premier Sifton has decided, as it is reported he has, to abandon the construction of the line which will link this city with the great water stretches of the north, he will feel the necessity of reconsidering this decision so that in the end history may not record it of him that he sought as the easy solution of a minor difficulty a trail which leads backward instead of forward to the goal of greatness.

JUST PARAGRAPHS

With regard to that nonpareil stuff just above the dotted line, Duncan Marshall says it used to go last summer, but it didn't go now.

According to the Bulletin anyone who wants a railway to open the north country cannot be a good Liberal. It hurts the old boy to get scooped.

His majesty's loyal conservative opposition in Alberta consists of a leader who is a follower, a follower who is a leader and two different kinds of independents who adhere as long as the adhering is good. The party held a convention at which it decided to adopt no platform, which shows great judgment. The several different kinds of conservatives are now free to go to their several constituencies and tell their several stories without any chance of being short-circuited by any one of several planks adopted in stereotype by any self-selected platform committee.

A new use has been discovered for the trade license by Mayor Gavron of New York. Down there they license pretty nearly every notified from match peddlers to the chauffeurs of the gasoline graft. When the teamsters' strike broke out the other day Gavron promptly notified the express companies that none but licensed drivers would be allowed to drive trucks in the city of New York. This gives the mayor the veto power in an unexpected way, as the non-union drivers have to come to him to get a permit before they have the inalienable right to go out on a wagon to get their heads caved in with a paving brick.

AT THE THEATRES

A Scene from "Polly of the Circus" at the Empire Theatre next Monday and Tuesday nights.

AT THE EMPIRE THEATRE. W. A. Partello will present, for the first time in Edmonton, on Monday and Tuesday, November 21 and 22, one of New York's, as well as America's greatest successes, namely "Polly of the Circus" the play that made an actor who had been born after her mother had been deserted by her wealthy husband, is left shivering with the shock of her death, dependent on her circus convictions for a living and education. One day, when the circus is exhibiting in a small country town, a great storm descended and caused a lot of trouble. Little Polly was trampled upon by the mob in the panic and was carried into the house of a young minister, who was greatly amused by her quaint ways and talk, and who persuaded her to stay at his home under the pretence of his housekeeper and himself, much to the mortification of the narrow-minded community. The trials and tribulations of the circus girl, her love affairs and finally the discovery of her father, are set forth in an interesting and entertaining story that will be presented to our clever people. Miss Alice Kennedy will be seen in the title role and Jack Westerman will cover a Dan Punch the big hearted old clown who wanders over Polly's circus life.

The Royal Welsh Ladies' Choir which appears at the Empire Theatre Wednesday, November 23, consists of twenty-five selected vocalists, all of whom are of exceptional personality, sang with a delightful and appealing quality of voice that blended beautifully in the ensemble. The shattering variety to the degree of fortissimo varied nuances of power, from a delicate pianissimo to the degree of fortissimo, which so limited a number of singers could reasonably be expected to attain. When at the close of the concert the Choir sang the "Hail Wail of Minerva," the whole audience rose on their feet, and the Globe, Nov. 8, 1910.

ASSENT TO C. N. W.

Mr. Mitchell, and Mr. J. K. Cornwall's bill to incorporate the Canadian Northern Western Railway Company.

In explaining his resolution regarding Fedorenko, Mr. O'Brien referred to the methods of the tyrannical Russian government in dealing with patriots who were fighting for emancipation. Tracing the history of the Fedorenko case the Socialist member said that the prisoner had used his influence in securing the election of a comrade revolutionary to the Russian "Duma" or parliament. This comrade was at the present time serving time in Siberia, and Fedorenko having assisted him in the election also came under the ban. In his successful flight from the country he shot a policeman in self-defense. He afterwards located in Winnipeg. The Russian authorities, however, sought him out and began proceedings for his extradition, which was ultimately granted by Chief Justice Matthews of Manitoba. The points which Mr. O'Brien emphasized were that the offence was of a political character, and that in dealing with Russia in 1890, political offenders were not liable to extradition, and that the only offence for which capital punishment was applicable in Russia was a political one, which meant Fedorenko was probably certainly be subjected to it if he was returned. Mr. O'Brien's address was devoid of sentiment or feeling. He merely placed the facts before the assembly in a practical way.

Is First of Its Kind

In sending the motion picture, Walter stated the Fedorenko case was the first of its kind in Western Canada since a crime which included the murder was committed. There were, however, two Russian political fugitives in Alberta whom the Russian government was very desirous of apprehending. Their offence was probably more serious than Fedorenko's without the consideration of the murder, but the Russian government could not get hold of them for they were under the protection of the British flag and the natives greatly appreciated that protection. Mr. Walker read an editorial from the Toronto Globe relative to the case, wherein it was stated that a further investigation should be held so as to throw light on the motive in Fedorenko's crime. The editorial was greatly in the fugitive's favor and Mr. Walker said that it expressed the sentiment of the day.

Both Mr. Telford and Mr. Puffer expressed sympathy with the fugitive, the latter suggesting that the fugitive should not only be allowed the protection of the British flag, but that the government ought to take into consideration Fedorenko's family, which is now in Russia and assist them in their husband and father in Canada.

Canadian Northern Western

Mr. Cornwall's explanation of his bill to incorporate the Canadian Northern Western Railway Company, was characterized by much optimism as to the success of the road and the great benefits which would be derived from it, if it were built. Not only would the railway open up 20,000 acres of the land equal to the best to be found in the district between Edmonton and Red Deer, but it would affect, by crowding open, millions of acres along the Peace River.

According to the bill the Canadian Northern Western Railway Company, is to run from Edmonton west to the Pine or Peace River basin, and also from a point on the C. N. R. line between Calgary and Edmonton to Rocky Mountain House, the line from there would run to the Brazos and Macleod rivers, and from there to the main line of the Canadian Northern which is to run," said Mr. Cornwall, "is not served by any other road at the present time. It is rich in minerals, and is capable of tremendous development. The road will open up Alberta as good a market as Southern Alberta enjoyed in the opening up of the Kootenay country."

Get Yukon Trade

Another point which Mr. Cornwall dwelt on was the great benefit which Alberta would derive from the Yukon trade which, he said, would be diverted to this province by the proposed road. The road would also open up the development of much timber and minerals, and one was as necessary as the other. The German Development Company which was doing considerable in the line of development in the west, but which was handicapped by the lack of transportation facilities would directly benefit by the road.

Mr. Frank Walker also spoke on the matter, emphasizing the necessity of railroads through the country which the Canadian Northern Western is proposed to run.*Respecting Witnesses

Mr. Mitchell's bill respecting witnesses and evidence does not interfere with the Dominion Evidence Act which applies to criminal cases, while it repeals the present provincial act. It deals specifically with the competency of certain classes of witnesses, and gives evidence, expert testimony, providing that no side may employ the services of more than three expert witnesses unless by consent of the presiding judge, provides for the administration of oaths by the uplifted hand, and the present method of kissing the Bible, which is considered unsanitary, and a number of other changes. The bill does not interfere with any of the present methods of proving facts or the genuineness of documents. It provides for the process of wills and for proofs of record documents.

The bill to prevent priority among execution creditors, also introduced by Mr. Mitchell, is of a purely technical character, and was introduced because of the suggestion of leading members of the bar and of judges. The bill is designed to take the place of the present act which does not go far enough and is in some respects faulty. It is a counterpart of an act in force in Ontario passed in 1909, and its purpose is to reconcile under one system the various orders of execution. The bill refers to provisions, admits no priority among creditors by execution from the supreme or district court.

Hon. C. W. Cross presented a petition of the city of Edmonton applying for amendments to the charter. In the absence of Mr. Bennett, Mr. Michener presented a petition for the incorporation of the Calgary College. Mr. Boyle presented a petition for the incorporation of the North West Life Insurance Company. Petitions were received from the Church of the Holy Trinity, and from the St. Vincent's Association, applying for incorporation, and from the Pincher Creek, Cardston, and Mountain Railway, for amendments to its charter. The house adjourned until four o'clock Monday afternoon.

IRISH HOLD WHIP HAND

Resolutions limiting the vote power of the House of Lords, before the consideration of the budget. The matter was finally settled in the Lower House by the introduction of a set of resolutions which aimed to pass a law to prevent the House of Lords from interfering or amending a money bill, but such limitations shall not, in any way, affect the rights and privileges of the Commons as they now exist.

The Second Resolution.

The second of the resolutions provided that the powers of the House of Lords respecting all other bills be restricted so that if any bill shall be passed by the Commons at three successive sessions and rejected by the Lords at each of these sessions, it shall become a law without the assent of the Lords, provided that at least two years shall have elapsed between the introduction of the measure and its third passage by the House of Commons. The third resolution limited the duration of a Parliament to five instead of seven years.

Took a Recess.

After the Commons had been passed the budget and forced the Lords to swallow it, Parliament took a recess until May 26, when the veto resolution of the Commons at three successive sessions and rejected by the Lords at each of these sessions, it shall become a law without the assent of the Lords, provided that at least two years shall have elapsed between the introduction of the measure and its third passage by the House of Commons.

Obstacle in the Way. The House of Lords is said to be the one obstacle in the way of Home Rule for Ireland, and when the Irish leaders cast their vote for the Budget it was with the understanding that the Government would see to it that a bill was passed limiting the veto of the House of Lords in order to get a Home Rule bill through.

Another serious question has come up within the past few months. This had to do with the question of whether or not labor unions may pay labor members in the House of Commons.

An Honorary Position.

The members of the English Parliament receive no compensation from the Government for their work. It is purely an honorary position. The vast majority of the members are of necessity in comfortable financial circumstances before entering politics. With the representatives of the Labor Party, however, it is different. They are selected from the ranks of laboring men, and of course in the majority of cases have no resources. For this reason it has been the custom of the Labor Party to pay their expenses. In a suit recently brought in England, a decision was handed down, which required labor unions the right to use their money for political campaign expenses, and to pay labor members in the House for their work.

What Laborers Demand.

The decision created a furor in labor circles and the labor unions now demand that it be passed giving them the right to use money for political purposes. Such a bill would go through the Commons all right, but would have a hard time in the House of Lords.

It is possible that the question may later be settled by passing a measure providing for salaries for the members of the House of Commons.

THE CHURCH, THE SCHOOL AND THE FOSTER CHILD

Peculiar situations sometimes arise in the shelters of the Children's Aid Societies. A Protestant woman visits the nearest shelter and from a number of bright child faces selects one which she believes she could adopt as her own.

As a rule her surprise is equalled only by her disappointment when she is told that the child being Roman Catholic is unavailable for Protestant home. The same rule holds good from the vice versa standpoint.

The Children's Protection Act of 1900 deals very clearly with the matter of a foster child's religious and school training. Section 10, (4) reads: "If the court is of the opinion that the parent ought not to have the custody of the child but that the child is being brought up in different religion from that in which the parent has a legal right to require that the child shall be brought up, the court shall have power to make such order as the court may think fit to secure that the child shall be brought up in that religion." (5) "Nothing in this section shall affect the power of the court to prevent the removal of a child from a determining what order ought to be made or any right which a child now possesses to exercise its own free choice."

Section 8, (2) "In placing a child in the home of the parents or being under a written contract which shall provide for the education of the child in a public school, if available, (or in the case of a Roman Catholic child in a separate school, if available. One of the most frequent inquiries in this line of work is: Why do you give out children at all? Why not put them all in a large institution where they could be cared for systematically?"

True, in a large institution it would be possible to keep the temperature at regulation height as per Fahrenheit, the children's clothes could be laundered by machinery, the linens of the place might be washed every night, the little cots in the wards kept immaculate, but while order is the first and foremost consideration, the next to godliness, this is no life for a child.

Nature teaches with bitter uncertainty that there is something lacking in institutional life for a child, something which leaves him weak, mechanical, lacking in originality and in that zest which only home life imparts.

Nature has patented mother love. There is no substitute. No child can grow to the best in manhood or womanhood without that all the unalterable decree. Fortunately mother love is inherent in every good woman to a greater or less degree. For the child, strength, morality, happiness, the whole fabric of child life is dependent upon it. And no matter how ideal the mother of an institution may be and the matron of a Children's Home may be a woman of extraordinary idealism and high moral principles, it is impossible for any woman to give the mother love, the personal care and the love of which every normal child requires of its mother. Then how about children who require more than ordinary care?

There is no place where the true Western hospitality is so truly expressed as in the country homes, and these homes have been the result of no healthy normal child shall be institutionalized in the province of Alberta. These homes for fifteen little children are wanted today. Seven of them are Roman Catholic. Eight of them are Protestant. Write the Superintendent of Neglected Children, Edmonton, for particulars.

THE PROFESSOR AND THE ELEPHANT

(Horton Transcript)

Details of Prof. C. E. Aleky's encounter with an elephant while hunting game in Africa have been received in Chicago. Prof. Aleky's letter says: "You may wonder what happened when I met the last elephant. Briefly this is how it was by surprise. The herd was some distance in advance of the bamboo and he was upon me with one tusk at my chest before I could raise a gun. I caught the tusk and threw myself between the tusks, grasping one with each hand. As I went down—he drove his tusks into the ground—his trunk curled under and on my chest. Just an instant, I saw his eyes, then with a wheeze or rage, he surged down and I went to sleep. Four and a half hours later I awakened, drenched in the cold mist, buried in blood and pus. One eye fortunately was of service, and I could see a little way off my camp fire and tents of the gun-barriers and porters, where they cooked their food and munched the dead wild beasts. They had left me to Allah and my byenas. My voice was in good shape, and how the cars did come when I called. They took me in, and during intervals of consciousness I got them to give me whiskey and beef tea. Dr. Phil of the Church of Scotland, who reached me about 40 hours after the 'collision,' I had the best of care. There were no bones broken except ribs, and I don't know how many of these.

you buried him was a basketful of dirty stock, I tell you! Old paper! Can't you hear me? Old paper, old paper!"

"You have sent me the same in come," she lifted her voice to interrupt. "You have made the same quarterly payments since his death that you made before. If you knew, why did you do that?"

He had been shouting at her with the frantic and incoherent exasperation of an intolerant man utterly unused to opposition, his face empurpled, his forehead dripping and his hands ruthlessly pounding the back of his chair, but this straight question stripped him suddenly of posture and left him standing limp and still before her, pale spots beginning to show on his hot cheeks.

"If you knew, why did you do it?" she repeated. "You wrote me that my income was from dividends, and I knew and thought nothing about it, but if the stock which came to me was worthless how could it pay dividends?"

"It did not," he answered huskily. "That distillery stock, I tell you, isn't worth the matches to burn it."

"But there has been no difference in my income," she persisted steadily. "Why? Can you explain that to me?"

"Yes, I can," he replied. And it seemed to her that he spoke with a cold and bitter desperation, like a man driven to the wall. "I can if you think you want to know."

"I do."

"Do you mean from your own?"

"I mean it was my own money."

She had not taken her eyes from his, which met hers straightly and angrily, and at this she leaned forward, gazing at him with profound scrutiny.

"Why did you send it?" she asked.

"Charity," he answered after palpable hesitation.

Her eyes widened, and she leaned back against the lintel of the door, staring at him incredulously. "Charity?" she echoed in a whisper.

Perhaps he mistook her amazement at his performance for dismay caused by the sense of her own position, for as she seemed to weaken before him the strength of his own habit of dominance came back to him. "Charity, madam?" he broke out, shouting intolerably. "Charity, do you hear? I was a friend of the man that made the money you and your girl father squandered; I was a friend of Jonas Tabor, I say! That's why I was willing to support you for a year and over rather than let a niece of his suffer."

"Suffer?" she cried. "Support? You sent me a hundred thousand francs?"

The white spot which had mottled Martin Pike's face disappeared as if they had been suddenly splashed with hot red. "You so lucky to my house," he said. "What I sent you only shows the extent of my—"

"Estrangement?" The word rang through the whole house, so loudly and clearly did she strike it—rang in his ears till it stung like a castigation. It was ominous, portentous of justice and of disaster. There was more than doubt of him in it—there was conviction.

He fell back from this word, and when he again advanced Ariel held the house. She had turned the next corner before he came out of the gate, and as he passed his own home on his way downtown he saw her white dress swinging with his daughter's near the horse block beside the first, where the two, with their arms about each other, stood waiting for Sam Warden and the open summer carriage.

Judge Pike walked on, the white spot appearing like a pale rash upon his face. A yellow heat sufficed him, he staggered before him, knee high, across the sidewalk. He raised his foot and half leaped at it.

CHAPTER XIX.

AS the Judge continued his walk down Main street he wished profoundly that the butterfly, which exhibited no annoyance, had been of greater bulk and more approachable, and it was the evil fortune of Joe's mangled to encounter him in the sinister humor of such a wish unfulfilled.

Respectability dwelt at Ben's Bench under the care of Mr. Sheehan until his master should return, and Sheehan was kind, but the small dog found the world lonely and time long without Joe. He had grown more and more restless, and at last, this hot morning, having managed to evade the eye of all concerned in his keeping, made off unobtrusively, partly by swimming, and reaching the road, cantered into town, his ears erect with anxiety. Bent upon reaching the familiar office, he passed the grocery, from the doorway of which the pimply clerk had thrown a bad potato at him a month before. The same clerk had just laid down the Tocsin as Respectability went by, and, inspired to great deeds in behalf of justice and his native city, he rushed to the door, lavishly seized this time a perfectly good potato and hurled it with a result which astonished him, for it took the unwieldy fairly aside the head, which it matched in size.

The jacketed Respectability's purpose to reach Joe's stairway had been entirely definite, but upon this violence he forgot it momentarily, and it is not easy to keep things in mind when one is violently smitten on the nose.

But before the revolver could be discharged Respectability had begun to run again, hobbling on three legs and dodging feebly. A heavy stone struck him on the shoulder, and he turned across the street, making for the Na-ough to strike them simultaneously, helping and half blinding, he deflected a cross Main street. Judge Pike had leaped to cross in the opposite direction, and the two met in the middle of the street.

The encounter was miraculously fitted to the Judge's need. Here was no butterfly, but a solid body, light with a vet, nuply and dusty yellow dog suitably tickable. The man was heavily built about the legs, and the vigor of what he did may have been additionally inspired by his recognition of the mongrel as Joe Louder's. The impact of his toe upon the little runner's side was momentous, and the latter rose into the air. The judge hopped, as one hops who, unshed in the night, discovers an unexpected chair. Let us be reconciled to his pain and not reproach the gods with it, for two of his unattended adversary's ribs were cracked.

The dog, thus again deflected, retraced his tracks, shrieking distractedly, and by one of those ironical twists which Karma reserves for the tails of the fated, dived for blind safety into the store commanded by the estate and financial clerk. There were shouts: the sleepy square beginning to wake up; the bench hoppers strolled to the street; the aged men stirred and rose from their chairs; faces appeared in the open windows of offices; sales ladies and gentlemen came to the doorways of the trading places, so that when Respectability emerged from the grocery he had a notable audience for the scene he enacted with a brass dinner bell tied to his tail.

Another potato, flung by the pimply, precocious, prodigal clerk, added to the impetus of his flight. A shower of pebbles from the hands of exultant boys dented the soft asphalt about him. The hideous chance of the pursuing hell increased as he tumbled at the next corner, running distractedly. The dent town had come to life, and its inhabitants gladly risked the dangers best in the interest of sport, when by it was a merry chase the little dog led around the block. For thus some desperate instinct drove him. He could not stop with the unappealing terror clanging at his heels and the increasing crowd yelling in pursuit, but he turned to the left at each corner and thus came back to pass Joe's stairway again, unable to pause there or anywhere, unable to do anything except to continue his hapless flight, poor motor.

Round the block he went once more, and still no chance at that empty stairway, where, perhaps, he thought there might be success and safety. Blood was upon his side where Martin Pike's boot had crashed, loam and blood hung from his jaws and hanging tongue. He ran desperately, keeping to the middle of the street, and, not knowing, set himself desperately to outstrip the crowd. The mob, disintegrating the sun superbly, pursued as closely as it could, throwing bricks and rocks at him, striking at him with clubs and sticks. Happy then, playing "tic-tac-toe," right hand against left, in his cell, heard the uproar, made out something of what was happening and, though unware that it was a friend whose life was sought, discovered a similarity to his own case and prayed to his dim gods that the quarry might get away.

"Mad dog!" he yelled. "Mad dog!" And there were some who cried, "Joe Louder's dog?" that being equally as exciting and explanatory.

The crowd, however, and still the little fugitive maintained a lead. A gray helmeted policeman, a big fellow, had joined the pursuit. He had children at home who might be playing in the street, and the thought of what might happen to them if the mad dog should head that way resolved him to be cool and steady. He was falling behind, and he stopped on the corner, trusting that Respectability would come round again. He was right, and the flying brownish dog came along Main street, passing the beloved stairway for the fourth time. The policeman lifted his revolver, fired twice, missed once, but caught him with a second shot in a forepaw, clipping off a little toe, one of the small claws that grow above the foot and are always in trouble. This did not stop him, but the policeman, afraid to risk another shot because of the crowd, waited for him to come again, and many others, seeing the hopeless client the mongrel followed, did likewise, armed with bricks and clubs. Among them was the pimply clerk, who had been inspired to counteract a pitchfork from a hardware store.

When the fifth round came Respectability's race was run. He turned into Main street at a broken speed, limping, arching, voiceless, decked with blood and foam, snapping feebly at the showering rocks, but still indomitably a little ahead of the hunt. There was no yelp left in him—he was too thoroughly winded for that—but in his brilliant and despairing eyes shone the agony of a cry louder than the tongue of a dog could utter—"O master, O all the gods I know, where are you in my mortal need?"

Now indeed he had a goal to run, for the street was lined with those who awaited him, while the pursuit grew closer behind. A number of the highest and bravest in his party and he hesitated for a second, which gave the opportunity for a surer aim, and many missiles struck him. "Let him have it now, officer," said Eugene Thranty, standing with Judge Pike at the policeman's elbow. "There's your chance."

But before the revolver could be discharged Respectability had begun to run again, hobbling on three legs and dodging feebly. A heavy stone struck him on the shoulder, and he turned across the street, making for the Na-

DENMAN CASE

Court was left in doubt yesterday afternoon as to just what Mr. Leech's arguments, or rather Judge Stuart's opinion of them was, owing to the failure of the lights. Mr. Leech, counsel for the defence in the Denman Clover bar case was trying to get some evidence as to Mr. Denman's alleged dishonesty as manager of the Edmonton Coal Co. Mr. Leech had referred to the pleadings and the particular part of them under which it came and Judge Stuart was just starting in to say, "The very points you are urging, Mr. Leech—", when the lights failed, and a deathlike silence followed.

"Is this witness an Edmonton man?"

"Yes," some one answered.

"We will adjourn till tomorrow morning."

The complication and intricacy of the case is now beginning to tell on the lawyers and all concerned. They wear a harassed hurried look. They wedge and walk up and down oxygen the judge, the witnesses and the clerk alternately. The papers and books used in the case sprawl over the desks and the tables; not one but has been carefully examined by the body of assistants who stand behind the defendant's lawyer. The case is now practically over and with the hearing of a few minor witnesses pleadings will begin tomorrow.

The case is now involved for the laymen, although the amount of the claim and the position of the plaintiff have drawn considerable interest and the court room is usually filled. To the lawyers, however, and the legal mind it is a mine of information and interest and the barristers are conscientiously dropping in to follow the progress of the case and make conjectures on its issue.

DISTRICT COURT.

F. W. Stiles of Lac La Poudre, was given judgment in his case against S. Herald in the District Court this morning. The claim involved lumber obtained from Stiles on August 12th, 1908. The defence was that Herald had not purchased the lumber and it had in addition been paid for by the cheque of Geo. McDonald.

The cheque, however, was not honored and Judge Taylor held that Herald himself had been responsible for the purchase and held him liable for the claim. Judgment was for $135 and costs to Stiles. L. C. Freeman defended and John Connack appeared for the plaintiff.

Melville's Astonishing Growth

Three years ago Melville had but one building—today it has over 300 buildings and this number is constantly being added to. The assessed value of Melville real estate in 1909 was $251,360. The assessed value of Melville real estate in 1910 was 1,292,000, an increase in the past year of 350 per cent. The same forces which have caused this rapid increase in population and real estate values are still operative, but their influence is cumulative, and the proportionate rate of growth in population and advance in value should increase from month to month.

Every day the traffic on the main line of the G.T.P. is increasing, and with every increase comes an addition to the force of railroad employees, making Melville their homes and headquarters. With every additional mile of steel laid on the Hudson Bay, the Regina, Lehighville and International Boundary branch lines, Melville's trade territory is increased.

A population of 10,000 for Melville will mean an increase many fold in the value of real estate in all parts of the town, based upon present values. If real estate has advanced in some instances 500 to 1,000 per cent, in two years, during which time the population was increasing from 625 to 2,000, it is reasonable to expect a much larger proportion of increase in values while the town is advancing from 2,000 to 10,000.

Advance in Values at Melville

Melville lots which originally sold at $75 to $100 a lot, are now being sold as high as $300 a lot. The site of the Municipal Risk was purchased originally for $225, and a year ago was sold to the city for $1250. Two other lots sold originally at $100 and $150 respectively. J. Rowan bought the two later for $1,200, and sold one for $1,200 and the other for $1,500. Two other lots, which were originally bought for $350, were recently tendered to the city as the site for a town hall at $2,000 each.

A special correspondent of the Winnipeg Free Press writes of Melville real estate values as follows:

"In the central business sections, lots average from $800 to $2,500, whilst upon the Main street properties between Second and Third Avenues the sales have averaged $100 per foot. Price of lots in the residential quarter average from $75 to $500 a lot. Recently a corner site, comprising six lots on Main street, was offered to the town council for the new town hall, at the actual market value of $16,000. Last year a large number of business premises and residences were erected, which, according to official statistics, approximated $300,000. Judging from the rate of building activity which now obtains, these figures will certainly not be lessened this year."

Buy Direct From Grand Trunk Pacific

The rapid increase in population of Western Canada towns has made fortunes for thousands of investors who had the foresight to discern the possibilities for profitable investments and the courage to back their judgment. You cannot make a mistake in buying lots in a divisional point city. The railroad makes the city and, in the case of Melville, no new city along the line of the G.T.P. between Winnipeg and Edmonton is likely to grow more rapidly.

The Grand Trunk Pacific does not plan into townships land located in swamps or so far away from the city proper as to make the lots of questionable value. The purpose of the Grand Trunk Pacific in selling these lots is to encourage the upbuilding of Melville, from which the Grand Trunk Pacific will receive more benefit than from the amount of money secured from the sale of the lots. It is for this reason that the Grand Trunk Pacific is offering lots in this townsite at such a low price and on such easy terms. No interest is charged on deferred payments and when the final payment is made the purchaser can rest easy in the knowledge that he will receive perfect title to his lots and that they will be located exactly as represented.

Melville Has No Near Competitors

Melville's future as a commercial centre is as assured as are its transportation advantages. It has no dangerous competitors within striking distance. In a commercial sense it is strategically located—a point the Grand Trunk Pacific doubtless had in mind when selecting it as one of the chief divisional points on their system. It is 275 miles from Winnipeg, nearly 100 from Regina, almost 200 from Saskatoon, and over 150 from Brandon. These are the cities with which it must compete, and the distance from each, such as to permit Melville to expand and grow in friendly rivalry, and with even greater speed, the north lies a vast territory, as yet commercially undeveloped, but which will be opened up by the building of the Hudson Bay Railway. Melville is ready to take immediate advantage of this development, and of all other cities of Western Canada the one best qualified by geographical position to do so. The fact that it is sitting right at the gates of this coming business is one that is already recognized by wholesale and distributing firms. Manufacturers and distributors will here erect branch houses as they have done at Regina and Saskatoon, and this will involve not only large building expenditures and monthly pay-rolls, but also increased population and local business of a permanent and highly desirable character.

CROWN PRINCE IS NOW A PORTER

Paris—Another crown prince in exile was discovered today in Paris, working as a porter in a bank for $20 a month. He is Dinah-Salifou, son of the late King of the Naloues. He has been in Paris several months, but he managed to keep his identity concealed until the present, owing to his desire to remain under cover until the French chamber of deputies has inquired into his claim for his patrimony.

Dinah-Salifou is 31 years of age. When eight years old, he visited Paris for the first time in company with his father. At that time he and his father were ascertained at the president's house, a gala performance at the opera was given in their honor, and a big escort attended them through the city.

France dethroned the king shortly after this, however, and confiscated his property. The old sovereign died recently and Dinah-Salifou immediately began seeking reparation from the French government.

STILL IN THE GAME.

Chicago—Granville M. Law, real estate broker, is a living refutation of the statement that a man never "comes back." Married five times, again and married Charlotte Jackson, divorced four, and with the fifth divorce pending, Law will "come back" New York girl.

In addition to his marital woes, Law has been sued once for $2,500 for alleged breach of promise, but earned a first decision from the courts by going into bankruptcy.

"I was married the first time in New York, I will write, a few years ago," said Law, today. "And really I forget the name of my first wife. I will divorce the changes brought by the present Mrs. Law, and after securing a divorce on my cross-complaint, will marry Miss Jackson. She will be the last."

Law said Miss Jackson was a "rich" and had offered to come here from New York and succeed him in his court boat with his wife.

IRREPRESSIBLE MR. IRVING.

Jack Irving, the storied petrel of Ontario Professional Hockey, and a man who has wrecked more hockey leagues than a cat has lives, has landed up again.

His base of supplies this winter will be the Midland district and the following dispatch explains the reason for his new post-office address.

"The Eastern Ontario Professional Hockey League was formed last night at a meeting with Belleville, Trenton, Peterboro and Port Hope represented, and Cobourg wiring their acceptance. Games will be in three periods of 20 minutes each. The officers—President, Dr. Yeomans; Belleville; first vice-president, J. Menary; Peterboro; second vice-president, George Nolan; Trenton; secretary, N. E. Irving; treasurer, Captain Colwell; Port Hope; Executive committee, Messrs. Brown, of Port Hope; Burrows, of Belleville; Hawley, of Trenton; Morgan, of Peterboro; Purser, of Cobourg."

"LITTLE DORRIT" IS DEAD

London Woman Said to Have Been Original of Dickens' Famous Character Succumbs.

London—A link with Charles Dickens has been severed by the death of Mrs. G. M. Hayman, one of the novel's close personal friends. She was married by her family to have been the original Little Dorrit. She would be reached her 81st birthday next week.

Mrs. Hayman's father was a solicitor living in London and for years an intimate friend of Dickens. The novelist was a visitor to his house and took keen interest in all the members of the family.

Mrs. Hayman's brother who died while still a lad, is asserted to have inspired another Dickens character, Tiny Tim.

The brother met with an accident while at play, being impaled on some skillets, but he was a cheery little fellow in spite of the injury which made him a cripple.

Melville's Excellent Strategic Position

That few towns in Western Canada can approach Melville in the matter of transportation facilities. It is both a divisional and junction point on the greatest transcontinental railway on the American Continent—the Grand Trunk Pacific. The ardently desired Hudson Bay railway, the dream of the prairie pioneer, is now in process of construction, and is already completed from Melville to Canora and trains are running between these points. This road will bring past the doors of Melville the bulk of the grain crop of Western Canada, and make it one of the great traffic centres of the country. Another branch line is now being constructed from Melville to Lehighville, by way of Regina, from which point another branch line is being constructed to the International Boundary. When completed this line will give Melville transportation facilities to all points in the United States. This road is already completed from Melville to Dulacres, and trains are now operating between these points. The main line of the G.T.P. from Melville will afford five water outlets, namely, Prince Rupert, B. C., on the Pacific Ocean, Halifax, N.S. on the Atlantic Ocean, John, N.B., on New Brunswick Bay, Fort Churchill, on Hudson Bay, and Fort William and Port Arthur, on Lake Superior.

Melville has many unquestionable points of superiority over other Canadian towns in the matter of transportation facilities. It resembles Chicago in "sitting at the gates of trade." The junction point is so important as the Grand Trunk Pacific and Hudson Bay Railway meet, in the natural course of events, become an important city.

Melville as a Manufacturing Centre

It is inevitable that Melville must become a leading centre of much importance. Already several big concerns have made it a distributing point for their goods, others are seeking locations there for branch houses. Two big implement concerns, two brewing companies and one oil company now use Melville as a distributing point, and another oil company has established a branch at Melville and is negotiating for a tract of land near the railroad.

The lead taken by these institutions is about to be followed by others of similar importance, and in a short time the goods will be loaded in by warehouses and mercantile establishments.

As a distributing point, Melville has strategic advantage which wholesalers will not overlook. It will command a large part of the jobbing trade for a considerable distance up and down the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific and the two important branch lines which centre there. Its shipping facilities make it an especially advantageous location for manufacturers. The completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific branch line westward to Lehighville will give Melville direct connection with the coal fields of Southern Alberta and provide one of the main requisites for a manufacturing centre—cheap fuel.

Backed by a rich agricultural district, an important railroad centre, a distributing centre and a manufacturing centre, Melville cannot help continuing to grow rapidly, and continued growth means continued increase in real estate values and big profits for those who invest in real estate here at present prices. Today is the time to buy lots in Melville.

Why Melville Lots Will Increase in Value

A few years ago what are now the important cities of Western Canada were no larger than Melville. It is today, and probably had no advantages that Melville does not have. It is usually easy to judge the future by the past. Fortunes were made by the early investors in lots in Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Lehighville and Prince Albert. Almost insurmountable obstacles might be cited where lots located in these cities were offered to and refused by investors at from $100 to $500 a lot. These same lots, in some instances are now worth upwards of $25,000, but the opportunity to reap the large profits that were made by the early investors in these cities, at ground floor prices, is gone forever.

History repeats itself. The profits that have been made by first-class investors in real estate in the growing cities of Western Canada will be repeated in Melville. But these profits will be made by those who have confidence in the future of Western Canada and invest in well-located lots at present low prices—not by those who delay from day to day until this opportunity is gone also.

The Grand Trunk Pacific offers, in its splendidly located lots in the townsite of Melville, an opportunity to the investor to share in the large profits that will accrue to him as the result of the rapid growth of the town. When Melville lots have doubled, tripled and quadrupled in value it will be poor consolation for you to look back and remember that had not an opportunity to share in these profits but do not take advantage of it.

Now is the time to buy—the prices for choice lots are extremely low and the possibilities for profit practically unlimited.

We Will Select Your Lots

The building of the Railway from Melville to Hudson Bay will extend over a period of at least three or four years. During this time we believe Melville will be the best known Grand Trunk Pacific division point between Winnipeg and Edmonton. This will necessarily create a great deal of activity in Melville real estate and this will redound to the benefit of the owner of Melville lots.

In order to secure well located lots it is not necessary that you specify the lot and block number. All the lots in this Grand Trunk Pacific townsite are practically level prairie land. The Grand Trunk Pacific does not offer for sale lots located in swamps or so far from the town proper as to make the lots of questionable value.

Mr. J. Rowan is our exclusive agent at Melville for the sale of lots in the G. T. P. townsite. Mr. Rowan is one of the pioneer residents of Melville, and a member of the Board of Trade. He will take pleasure in giving information relative to these lots to any one interested.

Our representative is well acquainted with the location of these lots and block number. You the best ones remaining unsold. Don't wait to write, but telegraph us at our expense, the number of lots you desire us to reserve for you, and the price you wish to pay. Then forward your remittance direct to the Land Commissioner of the Grand Trunk Pacific. If selection of lots made by our representative is not satisfactory, the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company agree, at any time within thirty days of date of purchase, to give the purchaser his choice of lots remaining unsold, at the same price, or refund all money paid.

All telegraphic reservations and correspondence should be sent to International Securities Co., Somerset Bldg., Winnipeg, Man., and it is important that Melville be mentioned in such telegrams and letters.

COMMISSION AT 'SCONA.

The Royal Commission in session at Strathcona yesterday morning heard the evidence of Dr. Torg and some of the prominent residents of the University city.

Dr. Torg outlined the growth of the university since its foundation three years ago. Satisfactory progress, he thought, was being made in all lines. In the more technical branches of science, however, much remained to be done. Appliances for demonstration and fully equipped laboratories were lacking, which might facilitate the training of students. Farming, particularly, needed to be taught in some way. The university being the educational centre of the province was the fitting point to start from, to educate the population of the province in proper methods of agriculture. The university set the standard in things educational, and the effect would be quickly felt.

Dr. Torg mentioned the plans on foot to teach technical and domestic science in the schools. The educational authorities in co-operation with the university had the thing in hand.

Asked us to moving picture shows and their educational value, Dr. Torg replied that he had not considered them but they would no doubt be useful.

As to research work Dr. Torg thought that the question was being discussed and something would soon be done. He thought they would do something towards discovering the natural resources of the province.

Dr. Torg was asked to submit a memorandum of things which he had in mind for the university he could recommend to the commission.

Dr. Riverview spoke in his testimony of the vital connection between farming and science which he thought had been somewhat neglected. On Dr. Robertson's suggestion he admitted that the high schools should be the proper place to begin such training as the teachers of the province recommended their instruction in the secondary schools.

During the afternoon session Dr. Lehman professor of science gave evidence. He advised agriculture the most important branch of education in Alberta, particularly chemistry. From this he believed, after a careful study of soils and experience with the worn-out land of India, that much could be done to improve the agricultural products and retain the fertility of the soil.

School gardens as object lessons were the readiest means of instruction for one can thus easily demonstrate the superiority of different seeds and soils.

Particularly was this true of farmers, who, as a class, learned from observation and not from instruction. An agricultural college would have a tremendous influence on farming. In Ontario the Guelph Agricultural college was already making itself felt throughout the province, and the improved farms all over the country were the result of it. He thought that such a work was necessary in Alberta as an Ontario.

Prof. R. C. Edwards of the department of civil and municipal engineering in the university was interrogated as to the purpose of the classes he instructed in the university. They were designed particularly for specialists but he would not say that others might not profit from them.

Mining he thought was becoming a serious consideration. The need of practical instruction in this line was keenly felt. Enquiries were constantly being made by men who wished some means to inform themselves on mining problems, practical men who were actually engaged in mining.

Asked as to the methods of surveying by sections in this country and the enormous waste of land and energy in the up keep of complex sections were never used Prof. Edwards said he had not thought of it. Dr. Robertson maintained that he had received complaints on this very problem from many farmers and he was trying to get some information on the subject. Principal McKee of the Strathcona High School thought that technical education helped the average student in the line he was to follow. Core would have to be taken to have competent instructors as oftentimes in such teaching the pupils learn more than the teachers.

Mr. McDonald of the Plasterer thought that tradition was possibly would not take advantage of night-classes, but they might be useful for setting standard. Evidence was also contributed by Fred Marshall, secretary of the Strathcona United Duncan Smith of the master plasterers, E. L. Crumb, of the master painters, Robert Ritchie of the Strathcona Milling Co., J. A. Holland on the practical aspects of technical instruction. All admitted the probability of it proving useful to the men who needed it could be in the line.

Mr. Rice Sheppard presented the farmers' side of the case. Mixed farming he had found to be a great preservative of fertility. His farm he found produced as good crops as now as thirteen years ago. He emphasized the necessity for experiment in things carried on in various methods of farming.

With this the evidence before the commission was concluded in Strathcona. Arrangements were made for departure and the party left on the evening train for Calgary.

The Denman-Clover Bar case which was to have closed today has been adjourned until Monday, Nov. 28th. The unusual number of witnesses—thirty-five in all—and the numerous delays that have cropped up all along the line leave the case now scarcely half finished. Criminal sessions open in McLeod on Tuesday next at which Judge Stuart is to preside, so the Denman case will have to wait until the criminal sessions are over. There is enough evidence to be taken to keep the court one week longer from that time. Mr. Farver, however, suggested that in the interim he and Mr. Leach, senior counsel, should in the meantime to eliminate all irrelevant material, so as to shorten the case as far as possible.
